

Sidney is the future

Welcome new marketing opportunities. Say goodbye to long waits.

Cargill is making a major investment in our soybean processing plant in Sidney, OH over two years. The resulting improvements will revolutionize your soybean delivery experience.

The expansion is expected to open in early 2023, and it will mean a significant increase in demand for beans. Farmers can begin forward contracting for the 2022 crop year.

We have focused the upgrades on making your delivery experience safer and more efficient, allowing for unload of 60 trucks per hour. You will also experience:

- Separate traffic patterns for bean trucks and other vehicles.
- Separate drags and legs on each dump
- Individual Compuweigh servers for each dump
- Inbound gross weights by the probe and outbound tare weights at the dump
- Efficient route straight to the line with no check-in required.

You will enjoy a faster and safer unloading experience. Cargill is revolutionizing your delivery experience. Visit cargill.com/sidneyisthefuture for updates.
